We've lived here 19 yrs. We've mostly only had satellite as an ISP. Service was too slow to stream , computer response was very slow. We live on a 1 mile road along with aprx 17 other homes. Our choice of providers is very limited. Our house happens to be in a low valley of the street which further complicates reliable connectivity. We've had a couple ISP's come to our house and couldn't provide service because they could get reception even standing on our roof. One ISP wanted us to pay for technician to survey our area plus pay cost of equipment. We currently have had an wireless provider that is better than satellite but had to share in part of the equipment cost. We only have this service because provider was able to relay between 2 neighbors and us. I worry that tree growth will eventually cause a reception problem.

Upload supporting documentation - multiple files should be submitted as a .ZIP file.
